

Who is Homeless?

Consider these facts as published by the National Coalition for the Homeless, in July 2009:

In 2003, children under the age of 18 accounted for 39% of the homeless population; 42% of these children were under the age of five (National Law Center on Homelessness and Poverty, 2004).

In 2007, a survey by the U.S. Conference of Mayors found that of the population surveyed 35% of the homeless people who are members of households with children are male while 65% of these people are females.

The number of homeless families with children has increased significantly over the past decade. Families with children are among the fastest growing segments of the homeless population.

As this fact sheet makes clear, people who become homeless do not fit one general description. However, people experiencing homelessness do have certain shared basic needs, including affordable housing, adequate incomes, and health care. Some homeless people may need additional services such as mental health or drug treatment in order to remain securely housed. All of these needs must be met to prevent and to end homelessness.

Bridge of Hope is working to end homelessness.

Bridge of Hope seeks to end and prevent homelessness-one church and one family at a time. This program matches trained, church-based mentoring groups with single mothers and their children, one of the most vulnerable groups to experience homelessness.

Most families are referred to a local Bridge of Hope program from shelters, transitional housing units, domestic violence centers, drug/alcohol rehabilitation programs and churches. Eighty percent of these families successfully complete the program and achieve permanent housing and financial stability through employment, while building self-esteem and stability through ongoing mentoring friendships.
